

The number of new downtown Miami condos will surge this year

Downtown Miami's real estate market is slowing fast, just as developers are preparing to deliver the most new condos in a single year since the last bubble – a dynamic that will mean good deals for cash-rich investors and for young professionals, who might finally be able to rent units at decent rates. (Miami Herald)